About Sierra Club BC:

Founded in 1969, Sierra Club BC is the oldest environmental group in British Columbia, with an incredible history of success. Sierra Club BC works to defend B.C.'s wild places and species, within the urgent context of climate change. We advocate for a rapid shift away from fossil fuels to a low carbon, equitable economy.

We work to inspire British Columbians to value nature and to defend it. In particular, we focus on children and youth to foster environmental literacy and to encourage the environmental leaders of tomorrow.

In striving to protect B.C.'s wild spaces, we understand that land and people are not separate and honour the First Nations leadership that guides and informs many of our campaigns. Sierra Club BC both recognizes our responsibility and affirms our commitment to working towards reconciliation.

Sierra Club BC recognizes that land in B.C. is subject to Aboriginal title and rights, much of it unceded, and that land use decisions cannot occur on First Nations territory without free, prior and informed consent.

Sierra Club BC relies on science-based research and peaceful, democratic means to advocate for change.
